A BRACE OF SCUUNDRELS.

The Quincy (Fla.) Journal has this interesting reference to two characters who have a position of unenviable notoriety before the public, especially of North Carolina and Florida, for several years

"A requisition for the surrender of Gen. M. S. Littlefield to the authorities of North Carolina has been made by the Governor of that State on Gov. Day. This State, however, has a prior claim on him. Those who have noted tell me that two hundred (there or thereabouts) of the delegates are officeholders, employees, or dependents by contract or service on Federal patronage. Both Marshals of the United States are here, the Customhouse is here in full force; the Surveyor's office is here. The Appraiser of Merchandise calls the body to orler. What a happy selection. [Cheers]. The Internal Revenue pours in its Collectors and Assessors, and subordinates from every district in the State. The Land office gives up its ghosts. And the Postoflice has not shamed to parade in platoons even the letter carriers of St. Louis, whilst summoning likewise its representatives from every village that could be reached with a railroad pass. [Cheerr,] and last of all here turns up again that celebrated trio, whose unquiet shade I had thought was finally laid, "Easton, Smith and Newcomb," [Cheers.] In some instances it has been really pitiable to see the stretch of power that has forced attendance. Here was Postmaster Since then he has been in the custody of Warmoth, father of His Excellency of Louisiana, who comes feebly forward to duty,

[Cheers.] Why, there could not have been a greater gather ing of them if there had been a five thousand dollar office to be filled. [Cheers. What a rest it has been for the people of Missouri! All this controversy which excited such attention here from the pronounced manner in which the issues were developed, has gone forth into the arena of the nation at large. The same evils of executive domination protest from Republicans in almost every State that it was deemed necessary to subdue. This has led to extended organization on the part of Liberal

Republicans, and a call to meet National Convention at cinnati on May 1. There is alarm in hgih quarters at that call, and the storm signals have been set from the mast head. The result is a varied and persistent attempt to mislead the public as to the purpose and the Grant party. An opportunity is now meeting of the convention. The press, the telegraph, private announcement and all the arts of political strategy are used to give out an impression that it has been adjourned, that it will take no action, that no one will attend. Now I desire to put the minds of our Radical friends, many of here to-night, at rest on this subject of their daily scheming and nightly dreaming.
